Dear Dr. Benson:

As you may be aware, local artist Pilot-Obvious has released the first installment of the official Future Agents webcomic, which is part of our new marketing initiative. We have all been looking forward to this release for months and I know I am personally very excited to see what opportunities this publicity might bring us.

I am mildly concerned by how our field agent was portrayed in the beginning, but I believe it is a tactic used to create suspense. I am sure that the artist remembers our conversation about painting the program in a positive light.

I just wanted to take the time to remind you that agents need to be aware that interviews with the artist are in fact monitored to make sure that confidential information is protected. As you are continuing to install the updated HUDsets on our agents, please remember to let them know of this protocol and that there may be consequences if any information is leaked.

I am sure that the process of installing the HUDsets is operating without any issue. If anything is to arise, do not hesitate to get in touch with me. I am still out of town at the moment, but will return to Chicago in about two weeks.

Thank you for your cooperation in this matter.
